Library Brochure

Page 4: 1. Children's room.

After several years of hopeful planning and two years of construction and furnishing, the new children's room is ready in the basement. It contains books for children through the 6th grade. With more space for both books and children, and good lighting, it will offer improved service to our juvenile population.

2. Books of special interest.

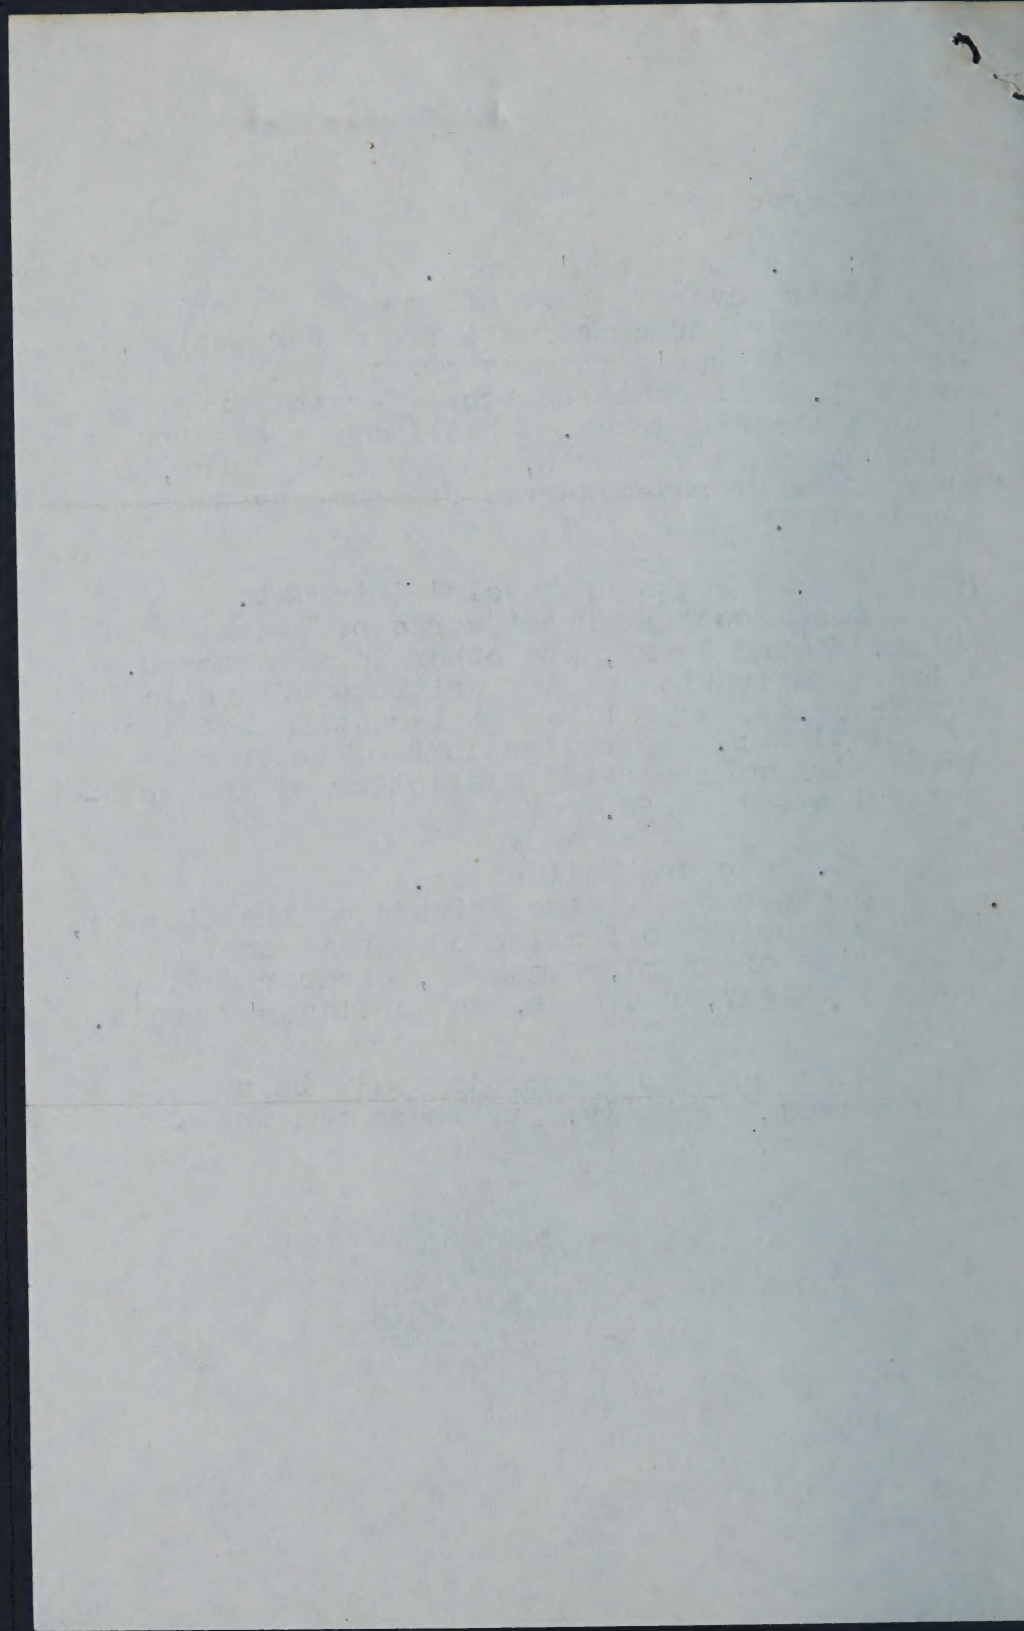

A collection of the works of Lydia Maria Child, Edmund Sears, and other local authors. A large collection of the writings of Arctic (polar) explorers. Many old and interesting books on the Civil War. A collection of books on local history and vital statistics of Massachusetts towns to 1850. Vital records to the year 1850
Massachusetts Historical and Genealogical Society

3. Record Collection.

Inaugurated by the Friends of the Library, it is a growing collection of LPs in the categories of opera, symphony, chamber music, musical comedy, readings, and children's music.

(Any changes in wording will be an improvement, probably, but these are the basic ideas)

Its Special Services

Short supply sentence

Children's Room. Completed in 1959, this specially furnished, well-lighted, and attractively decorated room -- with its own entrance and check-out desk -- contains a varied collection of books for children of ages up to and including those in the sixth grade in school.

A notable feature of the room is a large, semi-circular, sloping counter designed particularly for small readers of big ~~picture~~ books. Suitably sized stools go with the counter.

Pick up.

Books of Special Interest. The Library has the works of Lydia Maria Child, Edmund Hamilton Sears, and other Wayland authors. It also has a sizeable collection of writings by polar explorers or about polar exploration, many books on the Civil War and on local history. A set of the vital records of Massachusetts towns from their earliest days to 1850 -- records published by the New England Historic Genealogical Society -- is available, as is also John Quincy Adams' Textbook on Rhetoric, published in 1810 when he was on the Harvard Faculty.

Record Collection. Begun ~~in~~ by the Friends of the Wayland Library, this collection is growing. It includes LPs in the categories of opera, symphony, chamber music, musical comedy, special children's music, excerpts from plays and other readings.

Miscellaneous. Inter-library loan privileges for Wayland residents; the Library bulletin board of coming events; occasional exhibitions, readings, and literary teas.
